FRA's Code Services Group Hires Senior Project Manager

Rochester, N.Y. – FRA, a T.Y Lin International Company, has hired Scott Copp as Senior Project Manager in its code services group. Copp, former Building Department Director for the Town of Perinton, brings 22 years of experience to the position. He will be responsible for providing design review and assisting with building code compliance issues on a variety of projects.

Copp, a New York State certified code enforcement official, has a broad range of experience that includes serving as land use planner, planning and zoning board advisor, fire marshal, and flood plain administrator in a municipal setting. He has also served as past president of both the New York State Building Officials Association and Finger Lakes Building Officials Association. Additionally, Copp is a member of the New York State Department of State Codes Division, Western Regional Board of Review; the New York State Department of State Codes Division, Codes Council Technical Subcommittee on Energy Conservation Construction Code; and the International Codes Council Mechanical Code Development Committee.

“Scott’s experience with and understanding of municipal building codes and laws is nearly unmatched in our industry. His passion for all things ‘code’ will be extremely valuable to our clients and allow us to continue growing and offering review services to more and more customers,” remarked James Burton, Manager of FRA’s Code Services Group.

“When I made the decision to retire from public service, I was determined to find a private consulting firm that I had worked with on a number of projects and that I had a great deal of respect for,” said Copp. “I sought out FRA because I have seen their commitment to clients, the quality and timeliness of the deliverables they produce, and the professional and friendly manner in which they work. I was impressed with how they interact with clients early in the development phase of a project, and their team approach to advancing work. I’ve always found their efforts to provide code review services to local and regional design firms and municipalities innovative, and knew I wanted to work for them.”

FRA, a T.Y. Lin International Company, is a professional consulting firm that provides full-service engineering and architectural services to clients throughout the United States from 28 offices across the country. For more information visit www.FRAengineering.com.
